leaving available for appropriation......$139,051.59

The number of new vessels and new engines constructed at the company's works continues to increase, and with the large extensions to the workshops, and the introduction of the best adapted and newest types of machines, the company are now in a position to un-dertake the building of the largest class of vessels and to execute promptly the heaviest repairs.

Good progress bas been made with the new Dock, and the early difficulties, which retarted the work for sometime, have been overcome. The directors consider it desirable to increase the capital of the company by the issue of 2,500 new shares of $125 cach at a premium of 50 per cent., and a resolution to this effect will be submitted to the share. holders at the extraordinary meeting.

Mesers. Wm. H. Forbes and F. E. Foster having left the colony, the directors invited Mesers. E. H. M. Huntington and L. Poesnecker to the vacant seats on the board, which appointments require confirmation at this mosting.
In accordance with clause 60 of the Articles of Association, Messre. M. Grote and E. H. M. Huntington retire by rotation, but being eligible, offer them elves

The accounts have been audited by Mosers. Thos. Arnold and H. W. Davis. The directors recommend that these goutlemen be re-elected, and that the remoneration to each be increased to $200.

A long felt want will at last be supplied by the Cargo-boat Company which, I hear, has been started here by the principal foreign and native tea-merchants. The cargo-boats, carrying about 800 half-chests of toa, will be built here under the superintendence of an experienced European, who will also be in charge of them afterwards. As the toas have hitherto been brought down the river from Twatutia in small, open native boats, the owners of the leaf often sustained considerable losses by theft and damage, since no insurance could be effected. There is every prospect of success for the new Company, as the transport of tens from Twatutia to Tamsui and of imports hence to Twatutia is considerable, and the owners of goods will undoubtedly avail themselves of the large and covered cargo-boats of the Company, which will give them the fullest security.

There surely must be an error in the current statement that Lord Randolph Churchill is to succeed the Duke of Elinburgh as tenant of of Eastwell Park. No one could live there but a very rich man, and this we have never understood Lord Randolph to ba. It is true that the noble lord married the daughter of an American millionaire, but it has always been stated that the lady's father made the young couple an allowance of two thousand a year, with the promise that they would inherit his fortune after his death. The salary of the Secretary of State. for Iudia is five thousand a year; but Lord Randolph has only enjoyed the emoluments of that office for about six months, and his private fortune cannot be large. Possibly the liberality of his father-in-law has been stimulated by the distinction attained by the noble lord.

A certain very young girl living in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, decided last summer to try the Harvard examinations in the autumn. with a view to entering the regular course of study in the Annex. She betook herself, therefore, with a trunk full of books, to a secladed home in the country, and settled herself for ten wasks' hard, work reviewing her high school studies and conquering Grack enough quite by herself to pass for college. Two young gentlemen presently appeared on the scene, determined also upon secluded preparatory study. When they learned that the pretty girl with the Titian hair was "digging" for Harvard too they tried to laugh her out of her ambition. One of them, with the wisdom of 20 years, told her it was really a sin altogether against nature for a 17-year-old girl to try to read Greek alone, or to think of taking a Harvard course. The other youth declared it didn't matter, she'd never "get through the exams any way," and both tried to persuade her to take rides and bosting exoursions. But still she studied faithfully, and crammed her self-taught Greek until the examinations came. Then she went down to Cambridge and passed her examinations triumphantly, while both of the young men failed dismally, and found themselves obliged to study another year before getting into college.

The amateur (says Musical Opinion) who plays by car is a very brilliant creature. He plays Gottschalk and Wollenhaupt, or something like them, picking them up by hearing his sisters and his friends play them, and save he can go to the opers and come home and play the whole thing off by ear, Of course he cannot, but that does not matter. Like the man with the voice, he has also attracted the attention of the high musical authority, who has begged with tears in his eyes, to be allowed to teach, and has assured him that if he could be persuaded to study systematically he would rival Liszt and extinguish Bulow. "But I couldn't be bothered. Before I practised ten minutes at the studies I pitched the book across the room, dashed off one of my most brilliant Direction of wind ... pieces, and never tried it again." Thus Force of wind he poses before his friends as an inspired amatour, a genius who learns by instinct, and despises mean methods like hard work and technical correctness, such as are adopted by mechanical musicians who ply their work for profit. Each of these inalefactors has a fragment of that composite thing called musical talent, and how very composite it is few people realise, usually speaking of it as a separate part of the character whereas it is really a combination of diverse gifts Musical talent may perhaps to defined as an acute perception of difference in pitch in musical sounds, capability of reproducing them, and an emotional susceptibility to their effect.

There is a remarkable story in the January number of Tample Bar, which will well repay pernsal. It relates to the famous railway murder for which the man Lefrey was executed some few years ago. This story purports to be the narrative of a gentleman who was in the carriage at London Bridge Station, into which Letroy first entered. The gentleman had a basket of strawberries on his lap, which he was eating. As it was a very hot day he thought he would offer a few to his fellow passenger, a very seedy-looking individual. The man with the strawberries was very short sighted, so he began to peer into his fellow-passenger's face previous to offering him some of the fruit. Lefroy was all the while pretending to industriously read his newspaper, so that the gentleman was able to get a good look at him. As the result of his inspection he decided not to offer Lefray any of the strawborries. Lefroy appears to have been so disconcerted by the gentleman's scruting that he got out of the carriage at Croydon, and ontored that in which the unfortunate Mr. Gould was stiting. The gentleman of the strawberries happened to have $40 in each and notes upon him, and the inference is that, had Lefroy continued the journey in his company, he would have been murdered and robbot in place of Mr. Gould

A.SERMON ON WHISKY. An aged coloured man rose to a standing nosition and a point of order the other night ape with a tremulous voice and a feeble mien, and combated a sentiment adverse to the mo crushing out of old King Alcohol. Said he: -" Mind me, my bredern an' my sistern, of = a nanue-cote I wonee heerd when I was nigh about a pickanniny. Dar was a sho't ho'n kalf a ram'blin ob hisself down a shady lane. when wot should we see but Mr. Snaik alving on de ground wid a big rock on his hed, Savs Mr. Kalf-' Wot's de matter ob you? Says Mr. Sanik- Please, Mr. Kalf, to take dis stone off my hed. Dunno, save Mr. Kalf, "spec you'll bite me." Deed, no. says | -Mr. Smik; 'you take de stone off, an' fo' de Lo'd I'l pebber bite vou." So Mr. Kalf he knocked de stone offen Mr. Snaik's hed. "Which was you gwine, Mr. Kulf?' says Mr. A Snaik. 'Down die way,' said Mr. Kalf, so dev started off togedder. Bime by Mr. Snaik sav-'Mr. Kalf, guess I'll bite you.' 'Why,' said Mr. Kalf, 'von said you wouldn't bite me if I turned von loose, 'I know dat,' said Mr. Snaik, 'but I kain't beln it: it's my nature.' 'Well,' savs Mr. Kalf, 'we'll leave dat queschun to de fust niggah we meet.' Well, de fust niggob dev met was a fox. 'Mr. Fox, savs Mr., Kalf, I tuk a stone offen Mr. Snaik's hed awhile aback, an' be promised he wouldn't bite me. An' now he wants to bite anyhow.' 'Well,' says Mr. For, . de only way dat I can arborate de matter is to see de 'rig'ual persishuns ob de parties.' So dev went back an' Mr. Snaik laid hisself M. down, and Mr. Kalf put de stone on his hed. 'Now, says Mr. Fox, 'datam de'rig'nal persi-"shuns ob de 'sputants, am it ?" Dev boff sed it was. You mus' put de stone on de bed, an, gwine about vo bis'ness, an' de Snaik won't bite you."-. Pittsburgh Chronicle.

JOSH BILLINGS AND HIS DOG.

It is told of Josh Billings that once tramping with a yellow dog as his companion, he 1-1 fell among some Yale boys in a Connecti- B cut village hotel. They took him for a farmer | E from way back, and set out to have some fun |m with him. On their inquiring with affected interest after the health of his wife and children. Josh, with counterfeited simplicity, gave them a graphic account of his family and farm. "Of course you belong to the church ?" asked one of the boys. "Yes, and my father and grandfather before me." "Now, I suppose you would not tell a lie," said one of the students. "Not for the world." " What will you take for that dog?" pointing to Josh's cur, which was crouching beneath his chair. "I won't take twenty dollars for that, dog." "Twenty dollars ! Why, he's not worth twenty cents." "I assure you I would not take twenty dollars for him." "Come, my friend," said the student, who, with his companions, was bent on having " some fun with the old man. "Now, you say you won't tell a lie for the world. Let me see if von will not do it for 20 dollars. I'll give you 20 dollars, for your dog." "I'll nottake it." ' You will not. Here, let me see if this will not tempt you to lie," added the student, producing a small bag of half dollars, which · he built up in small piles on the table. Josh | " was sitting by the table, with his hat in his . Thand, apparently unconcerned. "There," added the student "there are 20 dollars, all in T silver; I will give you that for the animal." It Josh quietly raised his bat to the edge of the table, and, as quick as thought, scattered all | 5 the money into it except one half dollar, and then exclaimed-"I won't take your 20 dollars! Nineteen and a half is as much as P that dog is worth; he is your property!"

JADE. Jade has been brought to China as an article of tribute from the earliest times of which even the Celestials have any record, I and so highly have they prized it that they have joulously striven to keep it entirely in their own hands. It is, however, thought a possible that, as this mineral is not known to occur anywhere in Europe, the jade celts which have been found in European lake dwellings, and other prehistoric remains, have probably travelled thither as barter in the course of the great Aryan westward migration from the highlands of Central Asia. Tradition affirms that the Arvans regard the wearing of a jade ornament as the most effectual charm against lightninga faith which would naturally account for their carrying with them many such treasures. So in Hindostan, though specimens of carved jade inlaid with rubies and diamonds were among the priceless treasures of the Mogul Emperors, there is no reason to believe that this material has ever been found in the empire; and it is supposed that the raw material must have been brought from those same mines, of which there are considerably over a hundred, one great mountain side being riddled by dark tunnels, which are the entrances to long, winding galleries, excavated in every direction, and in some cases piercing right through the mountain to its further side. The jude is found in veins which are sometimes several feet in depth, but it is so full of fissures that it is rare to obtain a perfect block more than a few inches thick. Hence the great value of large pieces when found without a flaw. Such are reserved for the imperial tribute, and the Emperor himself awards such blocks to the artist who is most certain to do it justice, the natural form of the block deciding what shall be the character of the sculpture. Such an imperial commission is equivalent to a life work, for although when first broken from its rocky bed the jade may be scratched with an ordinary knife it soons bardens so as to become the most difficult of minerals for the sculptor's art. Hence, such voses and other ornaments as became so familiar to us after the looting of the Summer Palace each represented 20 to 30 years of ceaseless toil at the hands of a patient and most diligent worker. And yet I have seen some of these priceless art treasures in British homes, where their value in this respect seems undreamed of. The Chinese name of the stone is Yuk-Shek, and that by which we call it is said to be a corruption of a Spanish word referring to a superstition of the Mexican Indians, who deemed that to wear a bracelet of this stone was the surest protection against all diseases of the loins, hence the Spaniards named the mineral Piedra de hijada (stone of the loins), by which name it became known in Europe, and ere long was contracted to its present form. Where the Mexicans obtained their specimens is not known, mineralogists having failed to discover the mineral on the American continent. New Zealand, however, has supplied her own jade in the form of great pebbles, which with infinite labour have been wrought into those large colts and grotes que amulets which formed the most priceless possessions of the high chiefs. As a matter of course, in this daily market of the modern work produced in the jade-cutters' street, we saw no specimens of very artistic work ; such can rarely come into the market; but the prices of even simple thumb rings or ear rings is so great that I had to console myself by the thought that I could get much more show for my money by investing in some very pretty vases of a cheap green stone mounted in well carred stands of polished blackwood. It really is amazing to think of the value of the goods offered for sale on those stalls of rough wooden planks! The real price not the price asked with a view to its being beaten down in the wearisome manner in which all shopping is here conducted, but
